

Platform & VAULT Token FAQ

What are your Team's Credentials?

The core group behind the vault have been working together for many months in cryptocurrency circles, primarily in the defi space.

Composed of specialists in marketing, contracts, development, strategy, financials, audit and project management, the core team got to work quickly creating a community where trustworthy and innovative "meme" coins were released. With a tiny budget and not a lot more than an enthusiastic community, the tokens regularly reached mcaps over $500k.

Following on from this, the team saw a gap in the market for a DogeCoin dividend token - but quickly realised they wanted to launch something far more unique and professional, where serious investors and first timers alike had the opportunity to making significant returns on their investment.

What are the Plans for the Future?

A full roadmap will be published, but we will also be honest about our short and long term goals. We will always be working on ensuring our platform remains as competitive as possible, so will be flexible and agile in changing our approach when needed, but ensuring we always listen to the community and users. It's important to us that we take our investors and users on our journey with us, commanding trust in everything we do.

Our plan is to make our vault and subsequent pegged tokens world renowned, an exclusive membership/club which people strive to be in.

We want to help people change their lives through investments and giveaways too.

How will the Platform Make Money?

There are 3 ways that the project team will make money off of this platform:

Transaction Tax Revenue from Capital Asset Token Trades

There will be a small tax on each trade of the Capital Asset Tokens that will be converted to BNB and sent to the team.

Transaction Tax Revenue from Platform Token (VAULT)

There will be a small tax on each trade of the M7 Vault (VAULT) token that will be converted to BNB and sent to the team.

Performance Fee from each Operating Vault

Each vault will have a performance fee levied on it that will direct a portion of the dividends collected. These dividends will be the core source of funding for the platform, paying the team, our extended service partners, marketing, development and funding the daily competition prize pools.

Why Should I Buy the VAULT Token?

Holders of the M7 Capital Platform token (VAULT) will be allowed to vote on what asset tokens are included in the portfolio and take part in the daily trading competitions, giving them a chance to share in the platform profits.

How do the Daily Trading Competitions Work?

The daily trading competitions will be against one or more of the platform Capital Asset Tokens and each will run for 24 hours. Eligible platform investors will be able to compete to see who can conduct the most trading volume for the given token in that 24 hours.

1st place will receive 80% of that days tokens dividend pool that has been collected from the performance fee of that vault.

The remaining 20% will go to a random eligible investor.

The prize pool will be made public at the beginning of the competition and any dividend portion raised in the 24 hour period of that competition that would normally be set aside for a competition will go towards the next one held for that token.

How can I be Eligible to Participate in the Daily Competition?

To be eligible for the competition you need to have held the required value of the M7 Vault token at the beginning and the end of the 24 hour period and not have sold to a 0 balance in that time, if you meet these criteria there are two ways to win each day.

The first is to be the investor who has conducted the most trading volume in the given 24 hour period for the token of choice that day, that investor will receive 80% of the prize pool

The remaining 20% will be given to a random eligible investor

What are your Marketing Strategies?

Over the past 6 months the team have used nearly every advertising and marketing strategy that is available in this space and even looked at more traditional forms as well.

We believe we have a very good marketing plan going into this and will be sharing that as and when the time comes to do so.

Has the Team Worked on any Projects in the Past?

The team comes from humble beginnings, originally looking to pick up “degen” gems and bring them back to life through community coin groups, onto creating their own community coin projects which were quite successful as far as that scene goes.

It wasn't until July that the team found their first true success through DogeBack, which was almost as surprising to the team as it was to the community we had built and from there it was a sequence of firsts for all of us.

Very quickly we had to learn every facet of running a much larger operation, from managing almost 20k telegram members over 13 different communities, dealing with advertisers and promoters, to getting listed on LBank.

We believe it has set us up well in understanding what worked and what didn't and how to approach and structure ourselves for success

Why Should I Trust this Project?

Our team has consistently proven in every one of our projects that we are never out to scam, defraud or purposefully do harm to our community. Any time there were issues they were addressed with transparency (at times to a fault) and integrity.

As for this project directly, we will be looking to get our contracts audited before launch to add security to our claims so look out for those details.
